

2021 NGTL System Expansion Project

Engaging with communities

Cole Thomson

PUBLIC AFFAIRS, CANADA WEST

Please take a moment to hear from Cole about the ways in which we engage the public, local communities, elected officials, business groups, and emergency responders during project planning and construction.

“ Hi, I’m Cole. Normally I’d be hosting this open house in person in your community, but in light of the COVID-19 pandemic, we’ve gotten creative with our engagement. We want you have the opportunity to connect with us and learn more as we prepare for construction on the 2021 NGTL System Expansion Project.

On the Public Affairs team at TC Energy, I lead engagement on the Project with local communities, elected officials, business groups and emergency responders. It’s important for stakeholders to have a face and a name they can bring questions or ideas to.

On that note, I invite you to click through the links for more information and reach out to me at your convenience if you have questions. We’re here to help.

Using feedback from stakeholders like you, we help the project team develop approaches to construction that work for communities. Examples of this include learning what roads are the best to access our sites, where and when the school busses run so that we can safely avoid overlap and learning how we can maximize the benefit we bring to local economies. ”
